SiLabs C8051F120 / C8051F121 Applications Note Category:ARM microarchitectures Category:MicrocontrollersQ: Facebook SDK 4.8.2 images.py not found I am trying to update

my app from facebook SDK 4.0 to 4.8.2 but it is throwing an error: "images.py" not found Could anyone tell me how to get around this? A: The images.py file was removed in SDK 4.8.2, because it's part of a deprecated API (Graph API). You have to change the URL of the third parameter of the authentication fields (login_hint), and also the URL of the parameter to get access_token (access_token=). Alternatively, you can use the JSON Web Token with App Scopes (see App Scopes documentation): When Facebook redirects you back to your app, it doesn't know where to send you. To help you figure that out, it provides an extra identifier that tells the app which session to use. You can use this identifier in any of your requests, and Facebook will always send you back to the app that you linked from. If you want to get a JWT from the URL, you have to include a special code parameter in the URL. For example, if the URL looks like it should also include the code parameter: You can find an example here. Commercial aircraft such as the Boeing 737 are widely used to transport passengers between various cities and points within the United States of America and around the world. These passenger aircraft are typically equipped with landing gears to facilitate touchdown and to support and absorb the impact of the aircraft on a ground surface. Landing gears are typically of two major types. They may be either fixed or steerable. Landing gears of the fixed type are of two kinds, namely, conventional mechanical landing gears, and the so-called swing-type landing gears. In conventional mechanical landing gears, each landing gear leg
